

Melvin A. Eisenberg is the recipient of the Business Law Section 2008 Lifetime Achievement Award. A graduate of Harvard Law School, he joined the faculty of Boalt Hall School of Law at the University of California at Berkeley in 1966, where he has superbly taught several generations of business lawyers. Professor Eisenberg is widely recognized as one of the leading scholars of corporate and contract law. His numerous articles and law reform efforts have helped shape today's U.S. corporate law. He won the UC Berkeley Distinguished Teaching Award in 1990, the Rutter Award for Teaching Distinction in 2002 and the Faculty Lifetime Achievement Award in 2008. The author of leading casebooks The Nature of the Common Law and The Structure of the Corporation, Professor Eisenberg was chief reporter for the American Law Institute's Principles of Corporate Governance. He is an adviser to the Restatement (Third) of Agency and Restatement (Third) of Restitution, and a consultant to the ABA Committee on Corporate Laws.
